STRUGGLE INTERNAL

London, July 10.

The dismissal of Lavrenti Beria brought widely differing views from world capitals today.

French diplomatic quarters thought the chief result would be a return to the "tough policies" as they were known in Stalin's days, while in Washington Democratic and Republican Senators, felt the unrest within the Soviet empire was really a menace to the stability of the Soviet government and the Kremlin was desperately in need of peace to enable the Soviet leadership to consolidate its Scotch to allay anxiety has astonished doctors who have precisely measured its morale-boosting effect for the first time.

A small shot of alcohol substandally steps up the body's capacity to cope with mental pain within ten minutes of being swallowed, the tloctors report in a brilliant monographe just published.

The "lift" lasts at least two hours, reaching its peak about one hour after the drink has been taken.

Experiments were carried out on volunteers by Dr James Hardy, Dr Harold Wolff, and Mire Helen Goodell at America's Cornell University.

The doctors were able to cause anxiety by threatening to burn the volunteers with a heat-beam. The first physical sign of it was a sudden increase in sweating by the skin. This was detected by means of electrient contact pads attached to the bare arms. When cold sober some of the volunteers became anxious long before the heat was really painful. After they had drunk the equivalent of the one double Scotch there were no signs of anxiety until long after a blister half formed With the benefit of only one sliff drink the volunteers were much less concerned about the . fear of pain, and they were more resistant to it when it happened. The findings support the belief that some people are born n couple of drinks short of the best mental condition for coping with modern civilisation.

The U.S. doctors' ingenious experiments also confirmed that any form of distraction, such as interesting work or a loud. noise, automatically increases the body's power to withstand

> The most obvious "steal" is the blazer. Paris takes a white flannel classic, binds it round with red and white striped braid, adds three buttons as fastening and finishes off the siceves with the traditional braided line and buttons.

Where Lanvin-Castillo makes it different and more feminine is in the high cut of the neck-

Please note.—Parisians wear this outfit without a blouse.

Rounded dip

DERLIN'S confribution D strictly tailored—the fabric is heavy navy-blue wool; the front closing is double-breasted and the breast pocket is em-broldered with thistle heads in coloured silks. A pencil-straight white flannel skirt buttoning tightly down one side, helps the tailored look along.

Paris designer Paquin starts off by designing a blazerjacket in blue, white and black blazer-striped wool; but finishes by shaping the jacket away into a rounded dip at riblevel. It is bound round with black wool to match the slender dress beneath.

THE THISTLE女

Berlin sends a strictly tallored outfit. The blazer is in navy blue wool, doublebreasted and with a breast pocket crest of -strangely enough—the Scottish thistle.

Plus . . . a little glitter 🖈

Take the structure of a sweat shirt, add a little glitter by studding it all over with gold nail heads. Combine it with an instep-length skirt and the result-a glamorous dinner dress.

Troubled by smells? Air-wick

Amazing discovery kills smells of cooking, drains, lavatories, disinfectants

AIR-WICK is now. It works in a I new way-not to cover up smells. but to destroy them in the air. You simply unscrew the cap, pull up the wick and put the bottle on a high shelf. As Air-wick evaporates, unwanted indoor smells disappear like magic. Air-wick contains chlorophyll, the wonderful substance that keeps all growing plants fresh and green. It does indoors what nature does outdoors-keeps the air constantly refreshed. -Uso Air-wick all over the house, wherever you want a fresh, smell-free atmosphere. Air-wick is indispensable, too, in clubs, hotels, offices and tradition versus truth

The RSV has been fifteen years in the making and comes to us from the New World. The Advisory Committee, under the chairmanship of Dean Luther A. Weigle, Dean Circle a half dozen times, Emeritus of Yale Divinity School, consisted of forty cooperating denominations.

The KSV corrects mistranslations in the AV, and abandons obsoleta words in English, such as conversation for conduct and comprehend for overcome, which have entirely changed their meaning. Of the RSV of the New Testament, The Times has said, "This completely fresh translation, made muscles take the action. Hold lady, is to keep a level head on by scholars of the highest eminence, might well be authorized for use in public worship in this country, as an alternative to the Revised Version, to the advantage of all concerned."

English-speaking Christians may relinquish with some reluctance the words and phrases of the Authorized Version of the Holy Bible familiar since early-childhood.

But during the 341 years which have elapsed since the appearance of the AV, all Bible knowledge has been immeasurably enlarged." The new Revised Standard Version is the first version to take full advantage of present-day Household Hints resources in MS discoveries, as well as linguistic and archaeological evidence.

FASTEST MILE RACE LIKELY

By "RECORDER"

The fastest Mile race in the history of British athletics is likely to be run this afternoon at the White City, London, when Roger Bannister faces the fastest field of Milers ever to start in the AAA Championship. Though Bannister will be doubling in the Mile and Half Mile, he cannot afford to take it too easy in the longer race. Peter Robinson, the Light Blue, David Law, the Dark Blue, A. D. N. Breckenridge, the Scottish Champion, Ralph Dunkley of London University, Donald Seaman of the London Athletic Club and the Northern

Hongkong Well Up In Southeast Rankings

Hongkong is well up in athletic standing in Southeast Asia. The up-to-date performance lists, which probably exclude some Talwan performances but are fairly accurate for the rest of Southeast Asia, show Hongkong with 47 outstanding performers against the same number for Malaya and 59 for the Philippines. Singapore has 38, Indonesia 14, Taiwan 8, Thailand 2 and Borneo 1.

Colonel UP and Mr. DOWN ... by Walter

SATURDAY, JULY 11

BORN today, you have some very definite ideas and are determined to carry them out to the letter. You believe that emutions should always be kept under strict control. Consequently, very few persons outside of your own family circle even guess how deeply emotional you are! You have many progressive ideas and are original in your approach to them. You may be misunderstood by those who cannot keep pace with your mental processes. This may evoke early criticism, but as time proves you to be right, your reputation for shrewdness and firm decision grows by leaps and

Your ideals are exceptionally high and sometimes you are not as quick in reaching them as you might hope. Yet, you are not one to be discouraged. If you miss the first time, you are just the one to "try, try again!" Ultimately, you gain all your objectives. You are the type to believe that actions speak more loudly than words. Consequently, you keep your own counsel in important matters. But when you are ready to act, you act at once. This often gives the impression of impulsiveness. Those who know you best realise that you have made eareful plans well ahead of time and are just-lying low, waiting for the proper moment to strike when the fron is hot! You men should do well in politics and could attain important rank in diplomacy, if you made it your career.

You women are sincere and affectionate-more inclined than anything else to devote your major energies to running your homes with efficient precision. Yet you have so much personal charm that no one seems to sense that you are running things quite your own

BORN today, you are one of the world's truly independent spirits. You care little what the rest of the world thinks. You have your own ideas and intend to put them into action when the right time comes. You have a deep love for nature, love animals and have, a philosophical bent in your nature. All this gives you a broad, comprehensive view of life. You have musical talents and should develop them at an early age. If you do not utilise them as a profession, you should cultivate them as a hobby for your own

You are not as practical as you might be, for you are a day dreamer and one who builds castles in the air. You care little for material wealth and can be perfectly contented with the minimum of personal niceties, just so long at you are left alone to do what you want to do in your own way.

A marriage partner who can handle practical matters for you without giving the appearance of "running you" would probably be of great help. Left by yourself, you might invent a dozen things, but they would never be commercialised unless someone with a better business head takes them in hand and promotes them. Once you have solved a problem to your own satisfaction, you'll forget about it and go on to something new and more interesting. Your emotions are near the surface and unless you are on guard you may fall into remantic adventures which can leave a scar for life. Look carefully before you leap into marriage.

opening bid of one no-trump shows balanced distribution, stopper in, at least three suits (probably four), and a count of 16 to 18 points. North can well afford to go to game, since he has balanced distribution and a count of 11 points.

North simply adds his own 11 points to the strength shown by South in the opening bld. The tutal is bound to be at least 27 points and at most 29 points. This should be enough for game, but not enough for a slam.

West attacks the weak point by leading a spade, and East takes the ace. When East returns his low spade, South hopefully finesses the Jack, but West wins with the queen. West leads another spade, dummy discards a diamond, East discards a heart, and South wins with the

It is quite clear that South must develop the clubs in order to make his contract. Normally, declarer would take a finesse, hoping to find the king in the East hand. In this case, however, a finesse would lose to South should not risk the finesse in this case. If West has two or more clubs headed by the king, nothing can be done; the contract is bound to go down. If West happens to hold the singleton king of clubs (as he does in this case) he must not be allowed to win a trick with it.

Hence declarer begins his clubs by laying down the ace. West must sadly play his singleton king on declarer's acc, and the rest is easy.

What if the king of clubs happens to be in the East hand? Then South has given up one club trick that he might have won by means of a finesse. However, South can well afford to give up one club trick to East, since East is known to be out of spades.

The point is that South can afford to lose a trick to the nondangerous opponent but cannot afford to lose a trick to the dangerous opponent.

whether It . is not known Chinese troops are manning anti-aircraft guns in Indo-China and the general diplomatic view is that it would be "mildly surprising" if they were; but well-informed officials have confirmed that in the past weeks China has included a large number of antiaircraft guns in equipment given to the Vietminh.

It is also known that Vietminh troops have been selected for of first-class cricket matches training in China as anti-aircraft gunners. These Chinese-trained Victminh have been returning to Indo-China in increasing numbers in recent months. Officials here have confirmed that Chinese staff officers advise Victminh forces at most levels but there have been no reliable reports that Chinese troops have assumed combatant roles in the fight against the French.

recently visited Indo - China said that even if the Vietminh were using Chinese antiaircraft gunners it is almost impossible to tell. They are not to be distinguished by looking at them and their dialect would not necessarily give them away because of the many dialects among the Victminh troops, Air transport is fundamental to French military operations in Indo-China and the French acknowledge that the lack of air opposition has greatly assisted their mobile defence against widespread Communist attacks. The French use the Tonkin Delta as a main base from which to fly troops to areas attacked by the Communists. But, despite increasing anti-aircraft opposition, the French have recently claimed their air transport operations were unaffected. —Reuter.

Information Programme Criticised

Washington, July 10.

The House of Representatives Appropriations Committee today cut heavily into the new funds requested by President Eisenhower for the "Voice of America" and other agencies. It recommended, subject to House action next week, an per cent cut in the $1,069,996,084 requested by former President Truman for eight Federal agencies and activities, allotting them $108,155,584.

Major cuts imposed by the committee included one of $60 million for the State Department's international information and educational activities. The committee was highly critical of the State Department's foreign information programme, includes "Voice of American overseas broadcasts. It also criticised Mr Eisenhower's revised budget for the "Voice of America." The committee said it was fully aware of the importance of a publicity programme to maintain U.S. prestige and to "sell" America to foreign nations, but was "terribly disappointed" that this had not been accomplished. The foreign information programme, it said, employed far .too many people, many of whom spend their time on work which to make, this country look !"ridiculous."-Reuter.

Artificial Heart: Triumph For British Science

London, July 10. British medical scientists have developed an artificial heart to a stage where it can be used on human beings. The British Medical Journal published details of the heart, built up from researches by a team of doctors led by Dr D. G. Melrose, assistant lecturer in a post-graduate medical school.

In an editorial the Journal said the apparatus had been brought to " a high degree of perfection".

It added that Dr Melrose and his colleagues considered with justification that the artificial heart machine imight now be applied to the treatment of certain forms of heart fallure

The editorial pointed out the step from experiments on animals-the machine has been tested on 30 dogs-to treating a person was a big one...

"The vital step of applying the machine in treatment has still presumably to be taken." the Journal said. "The circumstances justifying the trial the present time are few but the potentialities of the machine may be considerable. "It is likely to be a valuable contribution to the advancement of cardine surgery".

In another article Dr Melroso outlined the experiments carried out on dogs in which the natural blood circulation was assisted by shunting part of it from vein to artery through the machine.

ALL SURVIVE

The experiments were made to assess the value of the machine in resuscitation, in the treatment of a failing circulation in man. None of the dogs died as no ill effects. "One animal preserved as a pet is in such good condition said that whatever happened, tive coursing," Dr Meirose said, September 15 would 'meet on He added: "The challenging time.-Reuter. problem was, and still remains, to produce an extra-corporeal apparatus capable of maintaining temporarily-the entire circulation of the human body"."

RUSSIAN VICTORY IRAN?

Teheran, July 10. Eisenhower's President announcement that United States is cutting off economic aid to Iran pending some break in its oil dispute with Britain came at a time when Russia appeared to be engineering a diplomatic victory here. President Mohammed Mossadegh had no comment today on Mr Eisenhower's letter announcing the cut-off of economic The United States will continue military and technical assistance. The American move came as Russia seemed to be gaining popularity by simply appearing to abandon its old role of a troublesome—and dangerous neighbour. It was reported that a conference will be held either in Moscow or Teheran to discuss a settlement of three major disputes between the two countries. These reports said that the Iranian Ambassador in Moscow, Nader Arasteh, has given the Foreign Minister, V. M. Mololov, Iran's reply to the Russian proposals for conferring to resolve differences. REPLY AWAITED

Iran now awaits Moscow's reply so that arrangements can be made for convening a conforence, it was said. The reports were given substance by the fact that both Arasten and Ivan Sadchikov.

Russian Ambassador in Teheran have postponed their, scheduled departures to take up new assignments. Informed sources said that they were waiting for a final decision on the proposed talks. The Shah of Iran, back from a Caspian Sea holiday, is to see Sadchikov tomorrow. From Iran's point of view the top problems to be talked over with Russia are as follows: 1.—The return of 11 tons of gold blocked by the Soviet National Bank since World War 2.—Readjustment of the frontier in Iran's favour to end a occade of border clashes. 3.—Abrogation of the 1921 treaty that permitted the Russian army to occupy Iran if Russia felt her security was threatened. "CULTURAL LINKS" In return, Russia was said to have asked for increased trading facilities and closer "cultural
